Part II Course Details

Abstract

This course aims to strengthen students' theoretical understanding and empirical knowledge of European politics and international relations. Lectures cover a wide range of key thematic issues such as nation-building, war and state formation, the emergence of democracy, the relationship between religion and state, capitalist development and the welfare state, political institutions, populism, as well as the process of regional integration and international relations. The focus of the course is twofold. First, these themes will be analyzed with a strong comparative focus that allows students to contextualize and understand European experiences in the light of broader theoretical and disciplinary debates. Second, by exposure to illustrations featuring various European cases and a presentation assignment, students will widen their knowledge of the history, society and politics of specific European countries. The knowledge acquired in this course will help students conceptualize and critically evaluate contemporary political dynamics in Europe and elsewhere.

Class participation

Criterion

Students are expected to attend all lectures and tutorials, and to participate actively, especially in tutorials.

Excellent (A+, A, A-)

Demonstrates excellent level of engagement with lecture and reading material. Participation in tutorials is above average.

Good (B+, B, B-)

Demonstrates good level of engagement with lecture and reading material. Participation in tutorials is about average.

Fair (C+, C, C-)

Demonstrates satisfactory level of engagement with lecture and reading material. Participation in tutorials is below average.

Marginal (D)

Demonstrates poor level of engagement with lecture and reading material. Participation in tutorials is well below average.

Failure (F)

Indicates that through poor learning or lack of effort, the student has failed to maintain even minimal attendance and participation levels.

Assessment Task

Class presentation

Criterion

Need to show knowledge of the country studied, the ability to discuss its experience from the theoretical perspectives learned in the course, to present research effectively, and to lead discussion appropriately.

Excellent (A+, A, A-)

Excellent knowledge of the country studied, the ability to discuss its experience from the theoretical perspectives learned in the course, to present research effectively, and to lead discussion appropriately.

Good (B+, B, B-)

Good knowledge of the country studied, the ability to discuss its experience from the theoretical perspectives learned in the course, to present research effectively, and to lead discussion appropriately.

Fair (C+, C, C-)

Adequate knowledge of the country studied, the ability to discuss its experience from the theoretical perspectives learned in the course, to present research effectively, and to lead discussion appropriately.

Marginal (D)

Scant knowledge of the country studied, the ability to discuss its experience from the theoretical perspectives learned in the course, to present research effectively, and to lead discussion appropriately.

Failure (F)
